THOUGHT and
COMMENT
NEVER WRONG

The most pestiferous man to the community and the most dangerous enemy to himself we believe is the man who is never wrong, the man who in many cases is afraid to admit even to himself that he has made a mistake.

Unfortunately there are all too many of this class in the world today and Richmond in its cosmopolitan melting pot seems to have acquired a few.

This type causes enough trouble when occupying a minor position but when it happens that they hold a position of authority—pull in your sails someone is going to crash up on a reef.

We all make mistakes, we would hardly be human if we didn't, and most of us know when we have made a mistake. Yet there is a type of man and sometimes he holds an executive position who would rather tremble on the feelings of all of his subordinates rather than to admit that he had made a mistake.

Many business men have paid a great deal for the mistakes of this particular type of stubbornness, and many an executive has caused his employer to lose money for this self same reason.

The advance of the man who is big enough to admit a mistake when he makes it is going far in the world. Apologizing for his mistakes and then going on is the best mark of a real man.

The man however who realizes that he has made a mistake and then will not admit it is merely displaying his own inferiority in his efforts to cover up his error.

There is an old saying that only fools fail to change their minds and we might add that only the pompous bully rebukes those underneath him for calling to his attention a mistake that he may be making.

By that we do not mean that junior employees should devote the major portion of their time to "showing up the boss" by their own superior intelligence. Usually the man higher up knows best or he wouldn't be there.

And all of this simmers down to the one terse statement that the size of a man can be easily ascertained by the manner in which he accepts criticism.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Moore, 732 Barrett avenue and Mrs. E. Patnot, 825 Nevin avenue will leave this morning for a two weeks camping trip to the northern part of the state and Oregon.

Mrs. D. Erickson, 2401 Solito avenue, who underwent a minor operation at an Oakland hospital, has returned to her home. She is reported to be much improved.

HOUSE MEMBER MAKES BEER IN CAPITOL OFFICE

Beer With 2.75 Percent Alcoholic Content Made by La Guardia of New York

BY THOMAS W. WRIGLEY
(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, June 19.—Real beer with a "kick," made while you wait a sudsy brew with the old-time hoppy flavor.

Representative F. H. LaGuardia of New York, fiery independent of the house, worked this morning in his office in the House office building today and tonight "faced an investigation and possible arrest as the brewmaster of what "drys" declared was an illegal beverage.

"It is legal beer—good 2.75 per cent beer," said La Guardia. "It has an illegal bootleg substitute, and Congressman La Guardia has violated the law," declared Wayne E. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League.

La Guardia made his beer before an interested and thirsty audience. He popped the tin corks of a half dozen bottles of malt tonic beer of 2.75 per cent alcoholic content now sold openly in drugstores as a "medicinal" beverage.

He mixed the malt tonic with beer containing about one-half of one per cent alcohol. "Prosto—here was a foamy lager, potent with a nice little 'glow,'" he said.

As La Guardia opened his impromptu bar before fellow members of the house, newspapermen, and some thirsty looking spectators, he said:

"To get Wurzburger beer you mix two thirds tonic with one third beer. If you want Pilsener, just add a pinch of salt."

Most of the samplers, however, never waited for the pinch of salt. A half dozen glasses were worked over-time, as La Guardia in role of bartender kept pouring the corks and mixing the brew.

"My purpose in making this public demonstration is simply to show that 2.75 per cent beer is harmless," said La Guardia. "And that if it is possible to make it in this fashion."

Search Continues For Lost Flyers

(By Universal Service)
Special Cable Dispatch
PARA, Brazil, June 19.—Governor Dionisio Bentes announced through Universal Service today that the Brazilian government is making every effort to discover the location of Bernardo Dugan, Argentine aviator, and his two companions, who disappeared during a trip from New York to Buenos Aires.

So far no success had attended the government's endeavors, it was stated, due to the fact that the plane was not equipped with radio sending apparatus, and that the area of search covers a radius of more than a thousand miles.

A scout ship and a gunboat are continuing the hunt, however, the last place the aviators were sighted was over Cayenne, French Guiana. The region south of that point is a network of rivers and marshes, practically uninhabited.

Cripple is Found Guilty of Murder

(By Universal Service)
SACRAMENTO, Calif., June 19.—After seventeen hours of deliberation, a jury of seven men and five women today found John V. Trotter, crippled automobile salesman, guilty of manslaughter in connection with the slaying of Frank E. Hinder, local printer, during a party in Trotter's apartments here on the night of March 6.

Trotter was twice tried for murder as a result of the Hinder shooting, the first trial ending in a jury deadlock. He professed innocence of the crime during both trials, though three guests at his party named him as the slayer of Hinder. He will be sentenced by Superior Judge Malcolm C. Glenn next Wednesday.

John Miller Expected To Roll Up A Big Majority

John A. Miller candidate for assessor of Contra Costa county who due to his ability and many friends is expected to roll up one of the biggest votes in the history of the county at the primary election here in August.

MILLER HAS "MADE GOOD" IN ALL HIS ENTERPRISES HERE AND HAS HOST OF FRIENDS

John A. Miller, notwithstanding the many rumors afloat for the past week, and the strenuous efforts that have been made to get him out of the campaign, will be the people's candidate of Contra Costa county for assessor. He will not only be the candidate, but every indication is to the effect that he will be the county assessor for the next four years commencing with the first Monday in January 1927.

Miller has stood the test and has not been found wanting. Meetings have been held in different parts of the county, at which the "pollies" have been present, and every indication has been made to have Miller withdraw from the fight. He has listened to the many offers of appointments, and other emoluments, but at the conclusion of the final effort at a meeting held this week, Miller replied that he would be false to himself, to his friends and to the people of the county, to withdraw.

Richmond knows the history of Miller in detail. Its people have watched his progress since he came to this city years ago, they have confidence in his ability, they admire him for his sturdy worth, and they are for him. In any work that he has undertaken, there has never been an instance where he has not made good.

He can number his friends by the legion, he has always been doing good for some one, and in recognition of his worth the voters of Contra Costa County will go to the polls in August, and roll up for him, the largest majority that any candidate has ever received.

The RECORD-HERALD feels that it is but voicing the sentiment of the great majority of the people of Richmond and the western end of the county in making the above statements. From all reports reaching this city it is believed that Miller's majority in other parts of the county, will be proportionately as large as in Richmond.

Miller comes from the ranks, and the position he has attained is due solely to his own efforts. He is a farmer boy, his experience has been one of hard knocks, and he is a firm believer in a "square deal" for everyone.

Miller made good when his father passed away, and the work of providing for a widowed mother, and a number of small brothers fell on his shoulders. Although but a young man, he gladly assumed the task, and during the years, that he was practically father, brother and son, he carried out the work in a manner that but few could. He was the sole support of the family.

Miller made good when the city council made him a member of the park and playground commission, and it fell to his lot to select the sites for the different parks of Richmond, and also carry on the work of securing the property at a reasonable price. Every piece of property secured was at a price lower than the average individual could have purchased. The members of the council accepted without question his valuation of all pieces of property. How well he did this work, the people of this city know, and they appreciate it. It was a labor of love for his adopted city, and there was not one cent of compensation attached to the position.

Miller, made good, when he was appointed as a deputy internal revenue collector for this district, and how fair, how thorough, and how successful he has been in dealing with

BOYS RETURN FROM Y.M.C.A.
SUMMER CAMP

Seventy-two Report an Excellent Time During Two Week Camp Near Hopland

Over 72 Richmond boys, hungry tired, sleepy but happy returned to Richmond yesterday afternoon by truck from the Y. M. C. A. camp on the Russian River, five miles south of Hopland.

All of the boys were in the best of health and they charged the atmosphere with their yells of joy—they had come home, the best part of going away.

A. W. Mueller secretary of the local Y. M. C. A. was in charge of the camp and he reported that a most excellent time was enjoyed. Every boy had a chance to show what he could do and the regular hours of sleep, play and work did the boys good.

Each tent at the camp had an experienced tent leader; an older boy who had attended many camps, and prior to this camp had been given a long course of preparation.

The tent leaders were E. George Harlow, Norman Silvia, George Johnston, Everett Tittimora, John Duarte, Robert Burns, Willie Hillier, Chester Pimm and Rev. M. H. Greenlee.

During the two weeks duration of the camp twenty five boys who did not know how to swim graduated as expert swimmers. Chester Pimm had charge of the athletics and he personally saw that every boy had a chance to build himself up as an athlete.

Norman Silvia had charge of the first aid work and every boy gained a knowledge of the treatment of minor wounds that will come in handy in an emergency.

Twenty-eighth International Eucharistic Congress Is To Be Opened Today In Chicago

(By MARY SYNON)
(By Universal Service)
CHICAGO, June 19.—Chicago, city of contrasts, of wealth and want, of good and evil, of consecration and crime, of grime and glory, rises tomorrow to its place as five-day capital of Catholic Christendom with the opening of the twenty-eighth international eucharistic congress.

Thousands of masses, beginning on the stroke of midnight with the service at the church of Notre Dame, and not ending until the last words of the long pontifical ceremony at the Holy Name Cathedral, will rise tomorrow in offering to the Great White Throne of the Lord of the Eucharist, while one million communions, the Spiritual banquet promised by George Cardinal Mundelein to his Holiness, Pope Pius XI, left the soul of the new crusade.

Parades, processions, hours of adoration, meetings of racial groups, vespers, benedictions, all the most splendid ritual of the Catholic church has started on that tremendous drama of pomp and pagantry which will come to a climax in the great pilgrimage to St. Mary's of the Lake at Mundelein.

One million pilgrims, adding their numbers to the millions of the city, arrive on every train and boat, while Chicago opens into spiritual glory like the sudden blooming of a century plant.

Streets jammed with small-paoped traffic; sidewalks surging with men and women from all nations of the world; railway stations congested with millions of pilgrims; boulevards fluttering with flags bright as butterflies; hotels gorged with excited travelers talking in the tongues of Babel; blue sky backgrounded soaring air fleets; churches receiving long lines of soaring pilgrims—this was the outer aspect of Chicago yesterday, as the great host of the pilgrimage advanced within the gates.

From early this morning crowds made their way to the churches, there to stand or kneel in line, while thousands of priests harkened to their penitent confessions. Some of them were men and women who have been daily communicants.

Others held their title to Catholicity by virtue of having participated in the Eucharistic Communion, that yearly duty of all baptized within the Catholic church.

There were, too, Penitents who had long been away from contrition, Centurions and Magdalenes, Philistines and Pharisees.

Almost every street in the city was a road to Jericho, as human hearts, burdened by sin, sought the solace of the rites of a religion they had long forgotten.

Long after the sun had gone down behind the smoke of the factories to the westward, crowds began to fill the churches where in the confessional nervous curates of obscure Parishes and Prelates of the church listened to the old, old story of human frailty. In the dimmed confessionals, Pilgrims heard voices which they could not recognize as those of men with those names the world has remembered this past week. All they knew was that God's minister had listened to them, and, believing their remorse for the ill they had done, bestowed on them the blessing of Him who had died for man's salvation.

All over the city the golden candles of the pilgrims were guttering down to their sockets when the first official mass of the congress began at midnight in the church of Notre Dame, at Sibley Street and Oregon avenue, with Alexis Cardinal Charost, Archbishop of Rennes, as celebrant.

While the East Bay Water Company is not seeking a sale of its properties, it nevertheless recognizes the right of the public to acquire its properties if it so elects, and in full consideration of this right of the public, the Board authorizes me to say that it has no intention of placing any obstruction in the way of the accomplishment of this end.

STATE HONORS

First prize for the greatest percentage in growth of any Real Estate Board in California has been won by the Contra Costa Board of Realtors during the recent campaign just ended by the California Real Estate Association. Every one of the hundred and three boards of California was assigned a quota according to its size and district.

The Contra Costa Board not only reached its quota but doubled it. A beautifully inscribed banner offered and presented by W. J. Hollingsworth of Los Angeles, was presented to the Contra Costa board at its next meeting.

The committee on awards made the following mention of Contra Costa board in the following words in its report:

"It is interesting to report that the achievement of the Contra Costa Board of Realtors in more than doubling its quota, stood unparalleled. Therefore, Contra Costa has won, beyond a doubt, the W. J. Hollingsworth Banner for the greatest board achievement during the 'five thousand' campaign."

Still is Found In Vacant House

A twenty-five gallon still hidden under a pile of lumber was discovered by the local police when they raided an old building at 2512 Maine avenue yesterday afternoon. The raid followed a complaint by a resident who declared that a still was in operation.

A search warrant was issued and a squad of police, headed by Chief Dan Cox raided the house.

The still apparently has not been used for over a month and had been disconnected the police declare.

In the meantime the authorities are searching for the owner or owners of the building.

ELECTION FUND
NOW EXCEEDS THREE MILLION

W. C. T. U. and Anti-Saloon League to be Asked to Explain part in Campaign

(By Universal Service)
EDWARD L. RODDAN
WASHINGTON, June 19.—Driving at top speed into its investigation of the Pennsylvania slush fund primaries, the senate probe committee tonight expected to reveal that more than $3,000,000 was used in the greatest spending orgy in the history of American politics.

The amount, it is expected, will exceed the "war chest" of the Republican national campaign committee which managed the successful campaign of President Coolidge throughout the forty-eight states in 1924.

Private advices received by the committee from the state capitol at Harrisburg are understood to have disclosed the following amounts spent by the campaign committees of the three senatorial candidates:

Rep. William S. Vare, of Philadelphia, $615,000.
Senator George Wharton Pepper, 1,630,000.
Governor Gifford Pinchot, $195,000.

Coupled with these amounts, reports filed at Harrisburg disclosed that another $225,000 was doled out for the campaigns of John G. Fisher, candidate for governor on the Pepper-Fisher ticket, and Edward E. Biddleman, Vare's running mate.

The funds of the gubernatorial campaign were expended for benefit of the "Pepper-Fisher" and the "Vare-Biddleman" tickets and will be accounted for before the senate committee.

They bring the total of revealed expenditures above $2,650,000, with vast sums expended by various county committees as yet uncovered. It is understood that only one of sixteen county committee candidates.

BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD

BY EDWARD CLARK

Copyrighted by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD" with Louise Dresser is a Warner picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Betsy Terwilliger and Hal Chutney, in Hollywood as prize winners of newspaper contests for movie trips, are depressed by the number of people seeking work. Betsy meets Virginia Perry, erstwhile star, now a failure. Both Hal and Betsy are disappointed in their first attempts to act. Oldsters see a mysterious resemblance in Betsy to someone they cannot remember. Marshall, reputed to be responsible for many of the "broken hearts of Hollywood," is attentive to Betsy, arousing Hal's jealous anger.

At last came a day when, at lunch hour, Betsy framed the question that had been dawning in her mind. They were seated in a quiet corner of the deserted glass studio on a Louis XIV. "love seat" which had been trundled off the set before being returned to the property department.
"Why do you dislike Mr. Marshall?" When he asked us to go for a ride the other night you were positively rude, Hal."
"Asked?" exclaimed Hal bitterly. "When he asked you, you mean?"
"He always means the both of us!"
Hal, in an excess of devotion, caught her hand gently: "Dear little goose, he never means us. He wants only you. It is you, in your sweetness, who gives him credit for being more of a gentleman than he is."
She slapped his hand with pretended severity. "Hal, she said crossly, "I believe you're jealous."
"I am, pet!" he murmured, catching hold of her in his arms. "Oh, Betsy, dear, can't you see that I'm worried over the interest you show in that man's attentions. His poss-

"Oh, Betsy dear, can't you see that I'm worried?"

of friendly adviser is fooling you. Some day he'll break through that veneer, and you'll see the truth. Please, Betsy, for my sake, be forewarned and avoid that day. It would only bring trouble—serious trouble—for I'll kill him or any other man who ever said a wrong word to you."
"Hal, don't hold me so tight. You're hurting me," she cried, straining away from his lips; sufficed at last by the flame behind the smoke. Then, thrilling unaccountably, she trembled a little and laughed nervously.
"Hal, you're getting positively dramatic. If a director saw or heard you that time you'd get a star contract right away." Then she added, more softly, "Dear boy, you're worried without cause. Mr. Marshall has never said a thing he shouldn't say. If he did, you may be sure I'd never speak to him again."
She relaxed into his embrace, stirred in a way she never had been before; she found the strong pressure of his young arms and body comforting now, rather than hurtful; and in return strained herself against him with awakened fire. After a while she whispered through lips that were moist on his cheek:
"Promise me you won't talk any more about killing—people."
"Then promise me you'll have nothing more to do with Marshall," he muttered huskily into her wispy hair.
"Oh, Hal," she exclaimed, more calmly now as they relaxed decorously upon hearing the approach of a whistling stage hand on the other side of the "fat." "I can't promise that, for if I'm to give up all my contacts, all my chances to learn through meeting and talking with people, I'll never get any place."
"But when she saw the returned disappointment and bitterness flaring in his eyes, she hastened to lay her warm hands over his and add: "But I'll promise you, Hal, dearest, that I'll never let the sacredness of our love be profaned by an advance from Marshall or anyone else.

Hal had to be content with that; and by and by as the mingling flames of love and hatred cooled a bit, he smiled ruefully and sportily tried to see the reason in Betsy's argument.

Extras and stage hands, their lunch hour over, were reassembling on the adjacent lot in which Betsy was to work that afternoon. For his part, Hal was working in an outdoor Alaskan set whose snow and ice and wind-machine made blizzards were growing amid the semi-tropical foliage of the Studio back lot. So it was time to part. But first Betsy said suddenly:

"Hal, do you realize that a week from today our two-months contract will be up. What shall we do then?"

Hal concealed his worry under an offhand manner. "Oh, don't cross that bridge until you come to it, Betsy," he encouraged. "Maybe they'll give us more work. If not, there are the other Studios."

"But I've done so terribly in everything. I'm very much afraid they won't have any more work for me." Betsy was much disturbed by the thought of the regular contract salary stopping, and the uncertainty of bit jobbing looming ahead.
You might be pleasantly surprised. I'm sure they can spot real talent and beauty under a little case of stage fright."

That afternoon, however, both, with the shadow of that next week on their minds, redoubled their efforts to please—and in their over-zeal, of course, only failed harder. It was the same story throughout that all too short week as it slipped by on reels of wind.

"On the day that marked the sixtieth since first they arrived upon the Amalgamated Lot full of great dreams and high ambitions, Cameron summoned both to his office early in the afternoon.

Directly they were seated facing him, Cameron swung from his desk and came to the point.

"As you know, of course, the contracts under which the Amalgamated Studios brought you here expire today. I'm sorry to tell you that we have no more steady work for you and will have to remove your names from the payroll today."
"Oh," cried Betsy, "then we've failed? Our tryouts were unsuccessful?"
"Yes," said Cameron bluntly.
Hal felt the hot color of disappointment burning in his cheeks; but his primary sorrow was not for himself, but for Betsy, whose eyes glistened with tears.
"I tried my best," she lamented. "I wanted so much to—make good."
"And so did I," said Hal, thinking of how his mother and his sister would take the news of his failure; and all the good friends in Centipede who had seen him off, who had worked hard to gain votes for him so that he could have this chance. He had failed their faith. That thought alone made him suddenly stubborn, made him forget his common sense declarations about going home if he failed.
"And I've been working right along," he said doggedly, "without any kicks lately. What's the matter with what I've done, anyhow?"

"You've worked, it is true. But you haven't shown anything that convinces us we ought to keep you on the regular payroll. That, of course, is an arrangement we make only with stars and the very best second string of talent. Of course, if anything comes up where we can use either of you—we'll be glad to. But you'll have to take your chances with the other twelve thousand now."

No matter how much humans are prepared for death or failure, the shock of the actual occurrence of either of these rarest experiences of life is never, any the less. Betsy and Hal, although they had talked the over and over, were prepared for the possibilities, looked at one another in dismay now that they suddenly realized to the full that they were cast adrift on the teeming sea of Hollywood's extras.

"Of course," said Cameron, more kindly now, for he, better than anyone else, realized just what these two were up against. "Under the contract you got your fare to your homes paid to you in cash at the expiration of the agreement. Therefore, my frank and earnest advice to both of you is to go home at once and leave acting in the movies to those who have the genuine talent and the elastic hearts that are prepared for failure. For, as I've told you both before, ambition and hard work alone won't get you very far in this business. You two are just kids. I like you. Everybody around here who has come into contact with you likes you, and is interested in you. So, while it's not usual for me to step out of my job and talk like a Dutch uncle to would-be stars in this way, I'm doing so because I don't want to see happen to you what I've seen happen to so many others."

MILLER HAS "MADE GOOD" IN ALL HIS ENTERPRISES HERE AND HAS HOST OF FRIENDS

practically every person in the county, who was obliged to make out income tax statements, who he willingly aided in making out their returns, can testify. In this connection Miller has become an expert on land valuations in all parts of the county.

Miller made good when the work of organizing Lions clubs in different parts of the county was thrust on his shoulders. There are five clubs in Contra Costa, and four of them are due to the efforts of Miller.

These many people with whom Miller has come in contact for the past few years, know him personally, they recognize his sterling worth, and they are for him. No possible influence will prevent them from going to the polls and casting their votes for him.

Miller is eminently qualified in every way for the position he seeks.

RESOURCES OF COUNTRY WILL BE DEVELOPED

BY THOMAS WRIGLEY
(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, June 19:—With the Capitol hearing in the throes of the Pennsylvania "gold-plated primary" investigation, President Coolidge remained steadfastly at work today on a tremendous program for expanding the national resources of the nation.

The President is visioning the America of fifty years hence, the needs of a population of 200,000,000 people.

Rumbles of more investigations, wet and dry probes, and the approaching clash of political battles in states and districts have failed to deter him from his task. He is apparently unmindful of the shouts of hostile politicians over defeat of candidates who have tied themselves to the Coolidge administration "apron-strings."

President Coolidge has focused his attention upon three great projects which he considers of vital need to this fast growing nation.

1.—Transcontinental highways.
2.—Inland waterways.
3.—Development of the Colorado river.

Congress has already authorized $150,000,000 for cross-country motorways to be expended in the two years ending June 30, 1929. It is a move of true Coolidge "economy" under a federal good roads program which will give the country twenty transcontinental highways ten of which will extend from the Atlantic to the Pacific and ten linking the southern borders with the Canadian line.

President Coolidge regards these transcontinental highways as of prime importance to America's development. They will link the various sections of the country into closer bonds of communication, bring about a greater interchange of people, of good will and of products.

The $90,000,000 rivers and harbors bill, for the development of American waterways, subject of bitter strife in the Senate although passed by the house after a two weeks filibuster, has been approved in principle by the President.

President Coolidge urges the increase of port facilities, and the expansion of the Mississippi, Ohio and Missouri river systems as waterways to carry their share of the commerce of the great basin of states. Already these waterways are paying annual dividends of 30 per cent in lower freight rates on the investment of millions of dollars spent to develop them.

The all-American ship canal and the projected Great Lakes-St. Lawrence route to the sea are included in the ultimate waterway expansion project.

Opposition of the rivers and harbors bill now in the senate is directed mainly to the provision sanctioning diversion of Great Lakes water to the Chicago Drainage Canal. It is contended that such diversion has lowered lake waters and is causing a huge loss to Great Lake commerce and shipping, the most profitable of inland waterways systems.

The President regards the bill for the development of the Colorado river as one of the country's far reaching necessities.

By harnessing the flood waters of this mighty river, so potent with power, over 60,000 persons and then $100,000,000 of property would be protected from flood menace in the Imperial Valley alone. The pent-up waters, controlled by a gigantic dam, would irrigate 500,000 acres of land, reclaim another 400,000 acres, provide a million horse-power in electric power and give Los Angeles and other Southern California communities an abundant supply of domestic water, badly needed.

The economy feature of this vast project lies in the fact that the development would pay for itself through sale of electric power in less than fifty years, and therefore prove a mighty asset to the nation.

Berkeley Company Complete Failure

Following a report of an investigation made yesterday by a committee of directors of the Security Bond and Finance company of Berkeley in which it was stated that the entire capital of the corporation had been lost and that an immediate liquidation through bankruptcy proceedings was necessary, all hope of re-establishing the finance company was lost, according to word received from Berkeley yesterday.

The entire capital of $1,000,000 and at least $145,000 more has been lost according to the figures of the report based on a preliminary audit of the books. An attempt to raise necessary funds among Berkeley merchants has been unsuccessful, the directors stated, and the corporation now must face bankruptcy.

Organized more than ten years ago the Security Bond and Finance company was regarded as one of the biggest financial institutions of its kind in the state. Its present conditions is said to have been caused by the farm loan situation and subsequent "frozen assets."

BOYS RETURN FROM Y. M. C. A. SUMMER CAMP

The boys had a wonderful chance to study nature at its best among the woods, flowers and the many beauties of nature under the direction of Mueller.

Norman Silva initiated the boys in the study of botany, studying the many flowers that beautified the camp.

Devotional work was under the direction of Rev. Greenlee, of the Community Methodist church.

The feature of the camp was the athletics and Tent No. 2, with Norman Silva gained all honors in baseball, volleyball and horse-shoes.

The big game of the camp was that with Hopland and in spite of the fact that many of the bush league players of Hopland played with the Hopland team the camp team lost by the close score of 7 to 5. Doyle Taylor chucked for the local team and Rusty Lane received his slants.

About all the members of the team were Junior high school players and they made a good showing.

But naming over all the features of the camp, the boys agreed to one thing—the "cats" were like mother cooks. Charlie Healey, the colored cook who has been with the Richmond camp for two years was the one who kept the kitchen range bright and clean and fed 72 husky, hungry boys.

According to Mueller it did him good to watch the boys eat. At the end of the day the boys were tired and the food tasted better than any served to the Ritz.

Boys who went to the camp as dainty eaters, who would daintily nibble at this and that became real eaters and Healey declared the biggest honor given him was the fact that several boys enjoyed his cooking so much that they over ate and had to be given first aid treatment.

The program of the camp started at 6:30, just as old man sun lifted his shining face over the mountains. Then the bugler placed his instrument to his lips and sounded the fast and snappy reveille and seventy two sleepy boys crawled out of their warm, comfortable bunks and "hit the deck."

Outside they tumbled and lined up for the setting up exercises that took every ounce of sleep from their eyes and made them ready for the day's work.

At 7:15 a real honest to goodness breakfast was served them. Ham and eggs, bacon, and cereals disappeared like a light snow before a summer's sun.

From 7:45 to 8:15 Bible study was held under the direction of Rev. Greenlee.

From 8:15 to 9:15 the boys took their brooms from under the wooden floor and sent one of the boys for a bucket of water. For an hour the camp looked like a beehive with every boy working like mad. Dust arose from the tents; water was sprinkled over the floors and to the tune of "The Old Irish Wash Woman" the tents were thoroughly scrubbed—beds aired and blankets folded.

At 9:15 Mueller and his staff gave the tent a cold eye and the best tent received a banner that was promptly lifted over the door and the most untidy tent received another banner that was promptly hidden with a vow that they would fly the good banner the next day.

Following the inspection, the many work details were arranged and from 10 o'clock to eleven o'clock the class work was accomplished.

From 11 o'clock to 12 o'clock the boys donned their swimming suits and made the water their habitation.

At 12:30 a big dinner was served and from one o'clock to two the boys rested.

Competitive games were played from 2 o'clock to 3:30 and from 3:30 to 4:30 the boys held their afternoon swim.

From 4:30 to 6 o'clock the boys were free to do as they wished and at 6 o'clock supper, the best meal of the day was served.

At eight o'clock a rousing campfire was lighted and the boys gathered around listening to stories and singing the old time, old familiar, popular songs.

At 9:30, the long drawn out, sweet taps sounded and the boys tucked themselves in for a long sleep.

Many honors were awarded at this camp and the biggest honor was the receiving of a "rag" from the "Raggers Society" for the best campers.

The highest honors is the "Red Rag" and two boys received this—two boys who had attended three camps. They were James Stanley and Thomas Beard.

The "Brown Rag" was awarded to the following second year campers: Robert Van Fleet, Schuyler Alberts, Jean Hall, Jack Dornay, Clyde P. Parker, and Lewis Ball.

Blue rags were awarded to the following first year boys: Carl Drexal, Paul Fotts, James Smith, Walter Hess, Bob Carlson, Rusty Lane, Ivor Pimm, Wilson Miller, Pearcy Jackson, Albert Glover, Billy Brock, Clarence Poulson, Eldon Hall, Walter Potts, Howard Caswell, Carl Pinto, Ralph Shallenberger and Richard Plate.

Camp numerals were awarded to 30 boys.

The camp was the best held by the local Y and every boy enjoyed himself to the utmost. Mueller and the directors of the local Y are pleased with the showing made by the boys.

The boys returned happy and sorry that the camp could not have lasted more than two weeks.

These and other questions will be dealt with in a unique way this evening.

There will also be several fine musical numbers. Mrs. Arthur Dice will sing as a soprano solo "My Task"; E. J. Hill and his son E. J. "BORROW" AN ENTIRE TOWN TO MAKE FILM

A whole town was "borrowed" for one week, to be used as a set for Pola Negri's new Paramount picture.

The scenes for "A Woman of the World," today's screen feature at the Richmond Theatre, called for a small town having certain characteristics.

Malcolm St. Clair found that Pleasanton, California, had all the requirements. A meeting of the city officials was called and, as a courtesy to Famous Players-Lasky, permission was granted to use any of the streets, buildings and parks as required.

Police officers were used to direct traffic from the streets filmed for the picture. The town became a motion picture set for an entire week, many of the citizens made their debut as screen players.

The production was adapted by Pierre Collins from a novel by Carl Van Vechten.

Other features on the same program include "King Cotton" a Lloyd comedy; and "Kinograms" world news events.

Coming Monday and Tuesday, Gloria Swanson in "The Untamed Lady"—a story of a thoroughly spoiled and yet lovable daughter of wealth placed in a position whereby she becomes absolutely and irrevocably "tamed."

C. M. Herbert is confined to his home at 4118 Fall avenue with a bad cold.

J. H. Erler, 1935 Grant avenue left yesterday for an extended visit to Seattle, Washington.

ELECTION FUND NOW EXCEEDS THREE MILLION

time all day yesterday, waiting to continue his testimony, while the committee turned its attention to the Pennsylvania primaries. He was present again today when the committee decided to adjourn until Monday.

A hint of the vast sources of revenue which the league has at its disposal for political purposes was given during Wheeler's brief appearance on Thursday when he estimated that approximately 1,000 full-time workers are on the payroll of the league.

Some of these employees, including Wheeler himself, receive as high as $8,000 a year for their services, he said.

The committee will also devote into a report that the Women's Christian Temperance Union in Pennsylvania attempted to raise a fund of $250,000 to help enforce the Volstead act in the Keystone state. This money, it is said, was to be placed in the hands of Governor Pinchot to be used in bolstering up the state's police machinery charged with enforcing the dry law.

A revelation that Pinchot co-operated in a plan of this kind, which is declared to be illegal, would prove one of the greatest bombshells ever exploded in ranks of organized dries.

Mrs. Maude Seymour of McConnellsbury, Pennsylvania, has been subpoenaed by the committee, to explain the details of the alleged quarter of a million dollar "dry slush fund." Mrs. Seymour, who split with the W. C. T. U. leaders, is said to have demanded an accounting of the fund during the recent primaries and to have charged that it was actually expended for political purposes.

The committee has granted the request of Mrs. Ella George, president of the W. C. T. U. in Pennsylvania, to appear with Mrs. Seymour to give the "other side" of the story.

The appearance of the two women, formerly co-workers in the dry cause, is expected to provide one of the most colorful sessions of the hearing. The attempt to raise the money, collections for which fell short of the $250,000, was revealed when the W. C. T. U. divided during the primary campaigns on the question of supporting Senator Pepper or Governor Pinchot, both of whom were running on dry platforms.

Magistrate Frank X. O'Connor, of Philadelphia, was today also summoned to appear again on Monday to explain his alleged charge that the Vire organization in the Quaker City offered him a large sum to quit the race for congress.

O'Connor's charges originally appeared in a Philadelphia newspaper interview attributed to him. O'Connor branded it as a "manufactured article" during his previous appearance before the committee. The committee promptly called four Philadelphia newspaper reporters, three of whom testified that O'Connor made the charge against the Vire organization on three different occasions.

Based on their charges, the committee ordered O'Connor's re-appearance before the committee.

Indications were tonight that the committee will be forced to labor practically all of next week before it completes its investigation of the Pennsylvania primaries. It will then turn its attention to Illinois and other states where sums of money are alleged to have been expended in primary fights.

Several important Pennsylvania witnesses remain to be heard including Representative John M. Morin, of Pittsburgh, who managed the Vire-Biddleman campaign in the western part of the state.

VAUDEVILLE AND LEW CODY FILM AT CALIFORNIA

Coming heralded as the greatest aggregation of vaudeville stars to appear in Richmond this year is the International Road Show, which comes to the California Theatre today, in conjunction with the screen feature, "Monte Carlo," featuring Lew Cody.

Giving the program a merry start are The Hernandez Quartette, a musical and dance offering that is of the highest calibre. This aggregation have just returned from a tour of the South American states where they have learned many of the little tunes of the south which are now included in their repertoire. Colorful costumes makes their offering a delight to the eye.

Billed as "The Chinese Duncun Sisters" the Chin Toy Girls offer songs in a delightfully naive way. Daintily costumed with pleasing voices that blend in perfect harmony the girls always are big favorites.

The Burns Trio a colored organization with comedy and song are sure fire entertainers. They have a specially written line of chatter interspersed with several southern melodies.

The Versatile Adolpho is ever welcome. He returns this Sunday with a bunch of new stories and some up to the minute "hits in music and song. Adolpho is recognized as America's premier accordionist.

Billed as "De Luxe Entertainers," Carr and Morin offer a fast routine of the latest song hits interspersed with clever dance steps.

"Monte Carlo," a side-splitting light comedy produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, will be the screen feature in conjunction with the International Road Show.

The picture was indubitably created for laughing purposes only and the laughs come thick and fast throughout the unrolling of every reel.

Three small town American girls, played by Gertrude Olmsted, Trixie Friganza and Zasu Pitts, win a newspaper popularity contest which gives them a vacation trip in Monte Carlo.

They arrive at the famous resort and romances spring up between Flossie (Trixie Friganza) and the duke (Karl Dane), who isn't a duke at all but a door man, and Hope (Zasu Pitts) and the count, who isn't a count, and between Sally (Gertrude Olmsted) and Prince Boris (Lew Cody), who is a prince all right, but not the kind whose uniform he happens to be wearing.

Each of the cast of comedians gives a distinguished performance and the fun is fast and furious.

A noteworthy feature of the picture is a fashion show, photographed in true colors and showing a host of bizarre style creations in their actual tints. There are also colorful scenes of the Monte Carlo beaches and hotels and other resorts.

Other features include a "Mut and Jeff" cartoon; "Kinograms" world news events; Carl Richard's California Orchestra; and Larry Canelo, at the mammoth organ.

Ironworkers To Battle Pittsburgh Team There Today

The Ironworkers will journey to Pittsburgh today to meet the Pittsburgh regulars there in what is expected to be a hot and heavy battle. In spite of the fact that the Pittsburgh team is rated as about the second best team in the league and the local Ironworkers are minus Hickok who has been sold to Twin Falls and Reed, the regular pitchers have to work, the local team is confident that they will make the Pittsburgh team fight hard.

The Ironworkers will use the Three Musketeers, Matthews, Murray and Jones, in the order named, in the box. Moss will don the Ironmask.

The Pittsburgh team scored but 6 runs off of the Y. M. I. team of Pittsburgh while the last time the Ironworkers played the institute they defeated them 16 to 6.

Rowland Roberts, in all possibilities will chuck for the Pittsburgh team.

AL WHITE
Al White, who annexed the national diving championship at Chicago this spring has announced he is willing to join the Athens athletic club at Oakland. With the addition of Al the club will have one of the best swimming and diving teams possible. The star diver is now working for the harbor commission as a surveyor in Oakland.

BOXING
The New York Athletic commission has stopped the hurling of towels into the ring by seconds of boxers. It has been the custom of the seconds as soon as they see their man is getting whipped to throw in the towel and end the scrap. But now the commission has adopted a ruling stopping this practice. They declare that the referee is the sole judge of the fight and he should be the one to stop it.

CREWS
Coach Ky Ebright is haying one sweet time with his varsity crew. Shake up after shake up has been made with his crew and he still is casting around for more changes to be made. Ky is seeing the danger of having a poor crew for what Washington did to Cornell is what they may do to California. The bad weather in the east has made work-outs almost impossible and Ebright is worried about the progress of his men.

FISHING
Wow! We can expect to see plenty of fishermen going to the Petaluma river now to cast for the elusive bass. It was only yesterday that Ed Hodges, president of the Petaluma Sportsmen club hooked a 40 pound bass in the Petaluma river at the San Antonio slough. Hodges was in a boat with three lines out and the big fish fater grabbing one of the lines towed the boat upstream.

Big Blast Used To Destroy Hulk Of A. Anderson

Four tons of dynamite, said to be the largest submarine blast ever fired, was used Friday afternoon near Martinez to destroy the last remains of the oil tanker Alden Anderson, burned and beached at Bullhead point in 1924. Water was hurled into the air for a distance of 250 feet and the bay was strewn with dead fish. Several attempts have been made to dynamite the tanker and two months ago a shot of two tons was used unsuccessfully as the hulk had been crusted with oil which acted as a buffer to the blast. It is believed that the shot yesterday was successful and that with a few smaller shots the hulk of the ship will be destroyed sufficiently to be towed by barges.

Extradition Of Betzner Before Gov. Wednesday

Hearing on the extradition proceedings against John M. Betzner, Richmond telephone employee charged with abduction of a child from Battle Creek, Michigan, will probably be heard by Governor Friend W. Richardson in Sacramento Wednesday, according to a report received from Martinez yesterday and said to have been made by Attorneys J. E. Rodgers and A. F. Bray, representing the defendant.

District Attorney C. C. Courtney and Sheriff George Coby of Battle Creek who have arrived in Martinez to push the case charge that Betzner and his wife, now dead, took the child to board and later moved to California adopting the child in Alameda county without giving the mother sufficient notice to enable her to be present in court.

Betzner claims that the child was given him with the understanding that he would adopt it, in answer to an ad he and his wife had inserted in a newspaper. He states that Mrs. Ruth Sable Roache was fully informed of the adoption proceedings and that he has evidence to substantiate his claims.

Martinez Man Hurt in Brawl

Alfred Lomadrid, 825 Escobar street, Martinez, was slashed by a knife in a brawl near the Southern Pacific station, Martinez, after midnight yesterday, by three Mexicans, whose names he was unable to supply. He told officers that he was fighting with one adversary when another came from behind and slashed him on the shoulders and about the arms. He stated that he could identify his assailants as he knows them by sight.

Antioch Bridge Is Dedicated At Big Ceremony

Stressing the importance of constructing highways and urging the bridging of water barriers, Lieutenant-governor C. C. Young delivered the principal address and formally dedicated the Antioch-Sherman Island bridge with impressive ceremonies at Antioch yesterday.

"I should indeed be amiss if I did not express my pleasure at being invited to participate in these splendid ceremonies," said Lieutenant-governor Young in his address.

"I have attended many events of this kind, but never one where a greater or more lasting service will be accomplished than by this Antioch bridge, which we are dedicating today."

"Of all the famous roads which are beginning to traverse our continent, the Victory highway particularly challenges our interest and attention. It is designed to become the shortest, the most useful, the most popular means of communication between the east and the west. It means much, therefore, to this fertile agricultural region, that having been routed to our capital city, it should be continued to San Francisco, not over the older and more established roads, but through your Delta district, past your city of Antioch, and through your county of Contra Costa to the bay."

"The accomplishment of this result is of importance both to this locality and to the state at large. It opens up to quick communication this marvelously rich country with which you are surrounded. "If for no other reason—this bridge and highway would be important for its substantial saving of mileage between Sacramento and the bay. In former days of horse drawn vehicles the problem of good roads and short routes did not assume a very great importance. If a road was passable—not too dusty in summer, not too

Woman Driver is Pleased With Her New Studebaker

Mrs. J. C. Campbell, proprietor of the Richmond Commercial School who just took a delivery on a Studebaker Standard Sedan from Geo. Olson the Richmond dealer, is more than pleased with the performance of her new car. Mrs. Campbell, in telling Olson of a fishing trip she and a party of friends made last week end, said the Studebaker outdistanced all other makes of cars on the mountain grades. The fact that Studebaker brings out a yearly model but keep their cars continually up to date was a big factor in Mrs. Campbell choosing the "One profit car."

muddy in winter, it was considered good enough. Rapid highway transit was a very minor problem. "The coming of the automobile and its universal employment as the normal means of communication, has changed all this. We have now discovered that it is far cheaper to build good permanent roads than it is to do without them. We have also learned that the saving of ten miles for one automobile, when multiplied by a thousand automobiles, means the saving of ten thousand miles and forms a very important economic factor."

"Unfortunately a condition has arisen in California when the building of new state roads, has for a time come to a standstill. Through initiative measures about to be submitted to the voters, the all-important completion of our state highway system is about to be resumed. It is to be hoped that every citizen will support this movement, and that co-incident with it our people will demand that the outworn system of ferry transportations be replaced by a system of trans-bay bridges in California such as this splendid new structure, which we are here dedicating today."

15,000 LIVES LOST IN FIRES

BERKELEY, Calif., June 19.—Five hundred million dollars in property, and 15,000 lives were lost in this country during the past year by fire, members of the Berkeley City Commons Club were told at their weekly luncheon by John H. Schively, secretary of the Insurance Federation of America.

"The majority of those who lost their lives were women and children, and most of the fires were caused by carelessness," he continued. He stressed the importance of being careful about minor details of fire prevention, and cited statistics to show that in one day in Berkeley, 85 per cent of the fires were caused by defective chimneys.

"At least one city each year during the past seven years has been wiped out by fire," Schively said, "and every citizen should help prevent fire hazards; in other words, put out the fire before it happens. For the same reason that you go to your doctor for advice in sickness go to your fire chief for advice in fire prevention."

Both the stocks hit new record heights during the trading and then abruptly dropped back to opening quotations. More than 25,000 shares of Union and 12,000 share of Union Associates were handled on the floor of the exchange.

House Members Make Beer

There is no reason why the regulations should not be simplified so that people can get 2.75 beer legally.

"More power to you, but keep right on mixing," broke in one of the elbow-benders. "It's good beer."

LaGuardia continued mixing and talking.

"Now the tonic medicinal beer is so sweet and has such a sickening taste that by itself it does not make a palatable beverage. Nevertheless it has 3.75 per cent alcoholic content."

"Near beer dissipates the sickening taste of the tonic beer. A pinch of salt helps. In this mixture you have from 2.75 to 2.84 per cent alcoholic content."

Those around the table far made way at LaGuardia's urgent request to give Julian Richard, for fifteen years an expert beer taster in Washington during the pre-Volstead days, a chance to get a sample.

"Delicious," was the verdict, and no one present raised a dissenting opinion.

In the crowd was Representative Green, Democrat of Florida, a staunch bone dry who refused to take a drink.

Dry leaders issued an ultimatum that the LaGuardia beer was illegal, and when word of the demonstration was carried to Wayne B. Wheeler, he declared:

"Congressman LaGuardia or any other present violated the law in mixing 3.75 malt tonic with near beer to make a beverage with an alcoholic content of more than one half of one per cent."

"We called attention to the fact when the permit for this malt tonic was issued, that it was fraught with danger and could easily be used by violators of the liquor law to make an acceptable malt beverage of more than one half of one per cent alcohol."

"To convert it into a product fit for beverage use is as illegal as it is to take any other kind of liquor and make it into a bootleg substitute."

"Mr. LaGuardia has made no new discovery. He is simply advertising a bootleg idea. Drug clerks in New Orleans and other places have tried the same thing and have been arrested promptly for doing it," said Wheeler.

SPRING CAR SALES CREATE NEW RECORDS

By ROY C. HAYES

(By Universal Service)

DETROIT, Mich., June 19.—The motor car sales outlook for the last half of 1926 is much brighter than it was in the early days of the year. Authoritative forecasts made last December and January envisioned a record motor-business for the first half of this year and said little of the remaining six months.

The seemingly bottomless demand for individual transportation is upsetting alarmists and their "talks" about the value in the final six months.

America at the moment is displaying the most insatiable appetite for automobiles that the motor industry has ever known. Nearly every week this spring set a new sales record and every car sold was a salesman for another.

Decreasing prices and constantly improved vehicles are proving magnets that the active American cannot resist. And necessity of family ownership of an automobile needs no demonstration here.

Motor leaders here are of the opinion that sales in the second half of this year will at least equal those of the first half, where more than 2,000,000 motor cars were built in this country.

Forecasted lower prices and a heavy of new models that are promised this summer are seen as the immediate buying incentives. Supporting these are the undisputed necessity of family automobile ownership, the extension of the counties paved road system and the evolution of the suburbs communities.

Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, who was in Detroit during the week attending the services managers convention, declares that the industry looks for a much more active business in the next six months that was participated in the early days of the year.

Retail trade in new car makes is reported as active in practically every sport of the country. Reeves declared. Small car business is weak in some sections, though active in many centers. Special drives are being undertaken by dealers in regions where the small car is sluggish, with the aim of clearing up those points within the next two weeks.

"Experts continue to be growing steadily as has been predicted. The foreign market now takes twelve percent of American production. On the basis of present records, the proportion probably will be fourteen or fifteen percent by the end of the year. With motor transport reading rapidly, there has been an increasing cordial attitude toward American products on the part of foreign nations."

One of the most interesting and important announcements ever made by an automobile builder will be released next Sunday by the Willys Overland Company of Toledo. The past Overland product is a four cylinder car embodying many of the essential features of the famous light cars.

The car, which was shown to automobile writers some time ago has some startling features that promise to cause widespread comment within the next few months. In appearance, the new car is characterized by unusual lines. The balloon tires are smaller than any hitherto presented on an American built car. The body lines differ from those of any present light car design.

Fifteen hundred people from Michigan and Ohio visited the Toledo factory last week and drove away hundreds of the new models. Enthusiasm was rampant as the car was unveiled before the crowd. The factory is now in production on the new job, plans calling for a daily output of 500, 190 of which are for export. The name price and detail will not be available until next Sunday.

One other brand of new car, a four cylinder job to be produced by an established manufacturer will be ready for the public in three or four weeks. The new sixes and one new eight are in the offing, as well as minor changes on some of the popular models of the moment.

Safety, economy and lower prices will be featured in nearly every instance. Body will be lower hung, smarter and more colorful in appearance. Use of four wheel brakes will be more general.

Local Firemen Adopt New Belt

According to an announcement made yesterday by Fire Chief Cooper each hoseman of the Richmond department will be equipped with a fire belt that was recently invented by Lieutenant A. L. Sherk of the Portland Fire Department.

Chief Cooper was captain of the company Sherk is now commanding and immediately Sherk wrote Cooper and told him of his "find." Cooper has ordered 27 of the belts to be made at a local leather shop.

The belt can be worn about the waist or the shoulders and proves exceptionally good for the handling of equipment.

It comes into good use when the climbing of ladders and fire escapes must be done. With the belt the fireman can carry such equipment as the crow bars, hatches and pikes. It may be used to hold a pressure hose nozzle.

Cooper states that the belt is light and serviceable and is essential on both water and truck companies.

BOY SCOUTS LEAVE FOR ANNUAL CAMP

Scoutmaster H. W. Garrard and Louis Rasmussen lead a caravan of Boy Scouts of Richmond, yesterday morning, into the Mitchell Canyon at the foot of Mt. Diablo. The boys who left for the camp included Gerald Minor, James Gray, William Tucker, William Wilson, Roy Melin, Frank Bodin, Todd Scott, John Jacobson, Robert Cruckoff, Clifford Christian, Fred Osborn, Dan Phillips, Henry Peterson, Melvin Upton, John Abbey, Al Brooks, Edward Brooks and Charles Russell.

Reed was a native of Pennsylvania, coming to California thirty years ago and had been a resident of Richmond during the past seven years.

Why the Studebaker Six Outsell
Every Other Car In The World of Equal
Rated Horsepower

Studebaker builds all its own bodies, all engines, all clutches, gear sets, springs, differentials, steering gears, brakes, axles, gray-iron castings and drop forgings. Only Studebaker in the fine-car field enjoys such complete manufacturing facilities.

One-Profits value

These facilities enable Studebaker to manufacture quality cars on a One-Profits basis—eliminating outside profits. The savings thus effected are passed on to Studebaker owners in the form of higher quality and lower price.

Unit-Built construction

Studebaker facilities result, too, in cars designed, engineered and built as units. The hundreds of parts in a Studebaker function as a smooth-working unit, resulting in scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation, greater riding comfort and higher resale value.

Always kept up-to-date
